The New Silver Mines in the Apache Country-Immense Wealth of the Claims-Arrangements for Working the Mines. SANTA FE, July 2, 1870.

A letter to the Daily Post from Grant county, New Mexico, descriptive of the new silver mines, states that the newly discovered mines are 5,000 feet above the sea level. There is a population at Raiston, the new village, of 200 persons. It is located about twenty-five miles from the nearest river. Two hundred and eighty-five ledges have been discovered, and over fifty miles of claims have been located. Many of the claims not being designated in accordance with the laws of the Ferritory are thrown out, but almost immediately relocated. A municipal government has been formed and a Recorder elected. There is no doubt of the immense wealth of a great many of the claims. A canal and railway company, with a capital of $1,000,000, has been formed to take the one to the milis at the river and to carry water in canals to the mines. The mines are in the heart of the Apache Indian country, and the settlement will be a great security to the pioneer settlers and travellers.

Bold Burglary in Belleville, N. J .- The Burglars Surprised and One of Them Shot-His Body Carried Off by His Confederates.

Belleville, a pleasantly situated town on the banks of the Passaic river, just above Newark, M. J., was excitement consequent on the appearance in the place of a gang of five desperate burglars and the supposed fataily wounding of one of them by a German cierk in the employ of Mr. J. F. Wisschusen, an extensive grocer whose store they had broken

About half-past one o'clock vesterday morning young Adolph Schmidt, the cierk who siept in the was aroused by the barking of the dog. Pretty soon he heard other noises as of persons rolling casks in the cellar. Grasping a revolver out he sallted through the back door, which opens on the river front. Ten feet of stood a man whose movements and looks appeared anything but honest to Adolph. Observing the stranger level a pistol at him Adolph did so too and fired instantly. Down dropped the stranger, throwing up his arms and uttering a wild cry. Adolph's ball had taken effect with a vengeance. The burglar's pistol went off also, but fortunately missed the clerk. The latter stepped back into the store, at the same time observing three men approach the prostrate body from an adjoining yard and a fourth get ashore out of a boat that hay alongside the wharf. This latter fellow took deliberate aim at Schmidt, but the latter seemed to bear a charmed life. The leaden messenger of death whized by his head a triffe nearer than was comfortable. Picking up their wounded comrade the miscreants beat a reteat for the boat and made good their escape. As soon as the citizens gathered pursuit was made, but of no avail. The villams had evidently intended to clear out the store pretty much, for hams and butter were found scattered around. It is believed that they had wagons on the Hudson county side of the river and escaped that way. Near where the wounded burglar fell was found his revolver—a bran new, silver-mounted Cout's. Articles of burglars' tools were also found. It is not a little singular that a grocery store on the site of Mr. Wessenbuerily was affect for the result. the site of Mr. Wesschusen's was set fire to and destroyed about a year ago, as believed, after having been plundered. The impression plevaits that the burglars of yesterday morning had to do with the arson case also. The rumot was current yesterday that a wounded man had been taken to the Glendale House, a hosteline on the Bergen plank road that has more than once been the scene of bloody afrays.

A Music Teacher of Flushing Disappears with a Young Girl, Thirteen Years Old-Great Excitement in the Village. Excitement in the Village.

The village of Finshing was thrown into great excitement yesterday by the rumored elopement of a well known music teacher by the name of Kaufman and a young girl, the adopted daughter of Isaac Paynter, only thirteen years of age, who went by the name of Jane Payater. At first the story was dis-credited: no one would believe it, and aithough Kaufman had not been seen since Friday morning, at which time he gave some music lessons to a number of his pupils, his fine appearance and the universal esteem in which he was held by his acquaintances in the village was so strong that the most direct proof was necessary to convince the public. It seems that Kaufman boarded at the house of Mr. Paynter; but in all the long months that he has lived in the family his conduct at the house of Mr. Paynter; but in all the long months that he has lived in the family his conduct has been the most respectful towards the family, and, as far as could be seen, towards Jane. He treated her kindly, it is true, but like a child rather than an equal. In a number of instances, when she has shown a desire to go to places of amusement, he has offered to accompany her, but in a manner impiving that it was rather as a favor towards the family than an act of personal enjoyment. At dances, a number of which they attended, Kaufman stemed to take more pleasure in the society of other and older young ladies, at one time even having been joked about it; but all this seems to have been a part of the plot to ruin an innocent child and throw a family into mourning.

On Thursday evening Jane, who had seemed troubled for some time, was asked by Mrs. Paynter to tell her what the matter was, and she then discovered the deep dammation of the smooth-tongued, oily-tooking individual whom she had been harboring in her own household. It seems that for a long time he had been on terms of improper intimacy with the child, and had at first overcome ner scruples partly by threats and partly by promises. The child was also tound to be in an interesting situation. The next forenoon, and before anything could be done about the case, the parties summarily left. At present nothing has been heard of their whereabouts. The citizens all evince a desire to have justice done the villain, but nothing as yet has been determined upon.

ANOTHER SENSATION EXPLODED. Mr. Etzold, of Union Hill, Safe Home.

Yesterday morning one of the finest sensations which graced the columns of the New York press some time ago was spoiled completely by the safe arrival at his home of Frederick Etzold, for whose disappearance the most extraordinary theories were advanced by hungry Bohemians. The HERALD's version of Etzoid's absence proves now to have been the correct one—namely, that Frederick took French leave of house and home to enjoy a few weeks of quietude and freedom from the calls of certain gentlemen who were importunate enough to request their own pennies from him. Several bills due by Mr. Etzold became payable during his vacation, and the men who endorsed them, it is rumored, had to come forward with the dust. Yesterday forenoon, however, Mr. Etzold was seen plodding his way up the hill, accompanied by his wife, who was so troubled at his prolonged and mysterious absence. The rumors rife as to his whereabouts are various, the most generally accepted being that he was in Chicago. By the time he enter ed his residence, at the corner of Blum street and New York avenue, numerous heads were popped out through the windows, and many a cunning wink was exchanged among the citizens, who seemed to understand the affair thoroughly. It is said that Frederick will remain at home for a short time. leave of house and home to enjoy a few weeks of GENERAL—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of a communication from the Vice Consul of Pembina in reference to the movement of hostile Sloux from the Winnipeg country in the direction of Benton. I heard reports from Indians of some import while I was in the upper country, and thus that some of those Sloux have crossed over and have made their head, uarters on Milk river. All the friendly indians, such as the Gros Ventres, of the prairie, have been driven in by these Indians and by war parties of Yancton Sloux and Auropapas—the former from the reservation of Fort Randall. A war party aiso attacked at Buford, on the 14th inst., three or four days after I passed over that country, from the stream which I had to abandon 100 miles above Buford's. The party was about 400 sirong and came in on my trail. They first siruck a wood party from the post, which had an escort of six Indian scouts, who fied to the post, leaving the wood party to defend itself, which it did until the troops came to the rescue. Four of the wood the post were wounded in the fight. The Indians attacked the post and a lively light took place in front of the garrison. SENTSHENTAL BARTHOLOMEW.

Bartholomew Upton is an ugly looking individual, in whose bosom, however, dwell most sentimental feelings toward one Ellen Bradley, whose misbehaviour some time since sent her on the Island. Bartholomew, pinmig for the absent Ellen, bethought him how he could miniage to secure the presence of his charmer, as a free woman, on the glorious national festival to be celebrated on Monday next, and hearing so much talk about the Danntiess and the cambria his befundled mind seized hold of the idea of a boat. The boat got, and, with the light of the moon, of course, Bartholomew rowed his little bark to Biackwell Island's shore, when, just as the fair and real Ellen was about embarking under the protection of the chivalrous Bartholomew, camer upon the seene, and all poor Bartholomew's plans were upset. SUDDEN DEATES IN JERSEY CITY.

How Coroner Burns Taught a Physician the Study of Law-Warning to the Doctors. Some days ago a woman named Mary Abrahall, Jersey City, fell down stairs and was so injured that death soon ensued. Dr. Forman, who was called on, gave a certificate of burial and the body was interred in Greenwood Cemetery. The case came to the notice of Coroner Burns, who at once communicated with the New York Soard of Health, and the result was that the body was disinterred, and it was found that the physician already named had made a post-mortem examination without consulting any of the friends of deceased. Coroner Burns commenced an inquest and Dr. Mulcahy made a regular post-mortem examination, which could not be satisfactory owing to the previous dissection. The inquest was concuded yesterday and the juryrendered a verdiet censuring Dr. Forman for making the post-mortem examination without the consent of Mrs. Abrahall's family.

The Coroner issued a notice a few days ago warning physicians that in case they undertake to dispose summarily of cases of sudden death without notifying him they will incur a heavy responsibility. Out of nearly twenty sudden deaths recently only four have been brought to his notice by the attending physicians. The New York Roard of Health have issued orders to the Jersey City and Hoboken ferry companies on the same subject, and henceforward all certificates will be subjected to a close scrutiny before funerals can cross the ferries either way. death soon ensued. THE BUGUS CHY MARSHAL.

The "Skip" Game as Practised at the Seventh District Civil Court.

The case of George Ferguson, reported in the HERALD some days ago, who is charged with feleniously representing himself as a city marshai attached to the Seventh District Civil Court, came up for hearing yesterday before Justice Bixty at the Yorkville Police Court. The exact charge against the accused is that he "beat" a woman named Mrs. Purcell out of fifteen dollars. The circumstances of the case are as follows:—It appears that Mr. Joseph H. Bray claims to se the landlord of a house statated between Fifty-sixth and Fifty-seventh streets, on Broadway. This house he let to Mrs. Ca harme Parcell, who occupied it supsequently as a boarding house, she having a reed, by a verbal subulation, to pay twenty-one dollars as rent. Having ower Bray for a month's rent he brought a suit against her in the Seventh District Civil Court to recover that amount, and judgment was given against her by Justice Maguire. She past seventeen dollars to Bray, the landlord, and told him that she would pay him the remainder in a few days. A few days after getting the seventeen dollars Bray went to her and told her that he wanted the rent. He was not in the habit of giving her a receipt. She offe ed to pay him four dollars, what she considered the balance due. He refused to take this amount unless he got the entire amount of twenty-one dollars. She acmarred and was in a fix occause she had no person to prove that she had paid the money. Bray then got a man named Ferguson to represent himself as a city marshal with a view to frighten her into paying the money. He subsequent, offered to have her reinstated in possession of the premises in case she paid fifteen dollars. She paid him, but he did not fulfil his promise. Subsequent quarre's ensuad between the parties, when he used her badly and directed her several times to clear out. On the case coming before Judge Elixby yesterday he was held to ball. The case was adjourned annal next Wednesday, when further tostimony will be taken. against the accused is that he "beat" a woman
